Features you should be aware of when considering this product

Your sales journey should identify the eligibility of customers and ensure that information is presented to them in a way that supports them through the process and enables them to make an informed decision whether the product meets their needs.

Where there are different underwriting and cover options available for this product customers should consider which option best suits their needs and circumstances.

Your customer journey and interactions should highlight and identify any customers with potential areas of vulnerability and address them accordingly.

Intended method of Distribution

The product should be sold by an authorised insurance intermediary, in line with FCA regulation and has been approved for retail distribution whether advised or non-advised. The sale of the product can be via online, telephone or face-to-face channels.

If the product is distributed to the customer via more than one broker (including ARs) then the second tier broker:

1. should not have their own agency with any Bspoke entity.
2. must deal directly with the end customer rather than through a third-tier broker.

Distribution costs, fees, and remuneration

The product supports the payment of commission to distributors within the ranges detailed in your Agreement with Bspoke (or our approved representative). If fees are charged to the customer for new business or renewal they should be at a level that ensures the total remuneration is less than 50% of the overall price the customer pays. Where fees are charged that take the overall % above this level you should ensure this does not erode the value of the product and is commensurate with the work done in the Distribution chain.

Where a policy is cancelled mid term and outside the cooling off period the return premium to the customer must be at a gross level and include the proportion of commission paid.

Other information which may be relevant to distributors

We are satisfied that the pricing, the cover, the design of the product, the claims settlement process, and the distribution methods we have chosen result in a product that represents fair value to our end customers.

We have noted the impact of weather events in the last 12 months and the challenges this has created in the claims management and supply chain, in particular relating to UK property. We have action plans in place with our claims service providers to ensure that customer outcomes and value are being protected and the impact of delays are being minimised.

This product does not adversely impact vulnerable customers and delivers outcomes that are the same as those for customers with no characteristics of vulnerability.

As part of the process of assessment, we have reviewed, amongst other things:

- General market pricing
- Our pricing in relation to the product loss ratio
- Product value over a reasonably foreseeable future period
- Renewal retention
- Mid-term cancellations rates
- Customer complaints
- Distributor feedback
- The commission we pay to distributors and the general distribution costs of our broker panel as disclosed to us.
- Customer needs and any changes in the last 12 months

We have also considered the pricing and premiums in relation to FCA regulations in PS21/5, ICOBS 6B and Consumer Duty and are satisfied we comply with the necessary requirements.

As part of our assessment, we concluded that time will not diminish the value of the product to the end customer. The customer may report a claim on the last day of the policy period and receive a settlement that would not be distinctly different to the settlement he would have received had he reported the claim on the first day of the period of insurance. The product also contains provisions to protect against the erosion of value over subsequent renewals and policy periods.

Where this product is sold alongside another insurance product that we do not manufacture (for example Legal Expenses or Home Emergency) you should consider the overall value of the package to the customer as well as the individual component parts as per PROD 4.3.6 A, B and E.

Where this product is provided with the option to pay the premium using Premium Finance arrangements you should ensure that this is taken into account in your own assessment of value as per PROD 4.3.6 A and C.

As part of our assessment, we have not considered the specific distribution costs of any one firm. You should therefore assure yourself that your own fee structure is compliant with your regulatory obligations.

If you have any concerns over the impact that your fee structure, Premium Finance arrangements or other products sold as a package may have on our products, then please contact us.

This document should be read in conjunction with the Policy Wording and Insurance Product Information Document (IPID) for the product.
